Dear Attorney-General

On behalf of the Electoral Commission of Queensland, I am pleased to submit for presentation to the Queensland Parliament, the 2024 Inala and Ipswich West State By-elections Report.

In accordance with section 18(2) of the Electoral Act 1992, the report details the operation of part 7 of the Electoral Act in relation to the by-elections held on Saturday, 16 March 2024.

Yours sincerely

Pat Vidgen PSM FGIA Electoral Commissioner

Introduction

On Saturday, 16 March 2024, the Electoral Commission of Queensland (ECQ) conducted by-elections for the State electoral districts of Inala and Ipswich West.

The delivery of the by-elections coincided with the 2024 local government quadrennial elections, with electors from the two State districts voting for both their State Member of Parliament and council representatives for their local government area.

The by-elections were required following the resignations from Parliament of the then sitting members for Inala and Ipswich West, The Honourable Annastacia Palaszczuk and Mr James Madden, effective from 31 December 2023 and 26 January 2024 respectively.

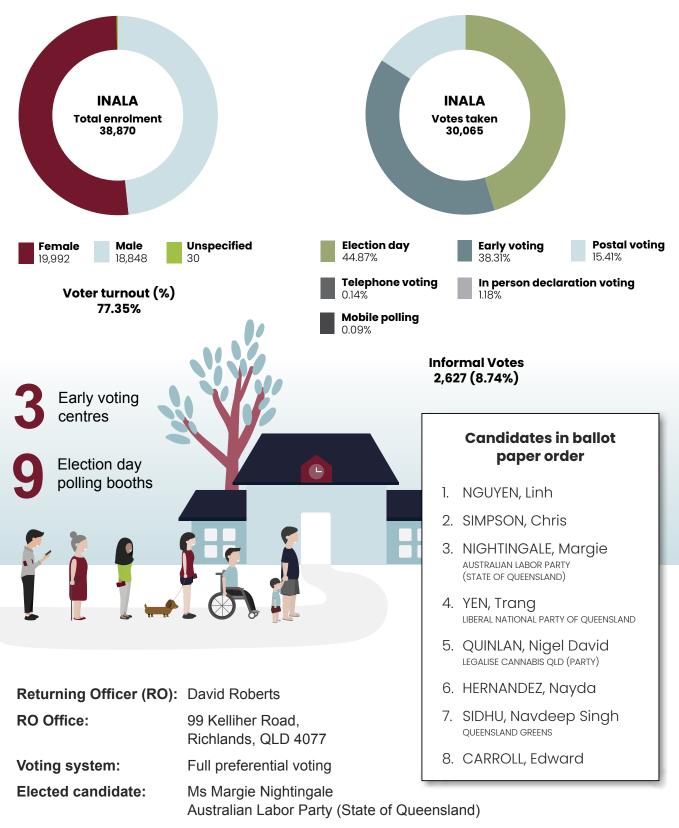

Her Excellency the Honourable Jeannette Young AC PSM, Governor of Queensland, issued two writs on 30 January 2024. The writs were issued under section 83(1)(b) of the Electoral Act 1992, to fill a vacancy that arises when the Legislative Assembly is not sitting.

These were the third and fourth by-elections held during the term of the 57th Parliament of Queensland, following by-elections for the State electoral districts of Callide in 2022 and Stretton in 2021. Following the completion of the March 2024 by-elections, Ms Margie Nightingale, Australian Labor Party (State of Queensland), was elected to represent the Inala electorate, and Mr Darren Zanow, Liberal National Party of Queensland, was elected to represent the Ipswich West electorate.

The writs declaring the names of the elected candidates for the Ipswich West and Inala State by-elections were returned to the Governor of Queensland on 22 March 2024 and 27 March 2024 respectively. Notices declaring the election of the candidates and notifying the return of the writs were also published in the Queensland Government Gazette on the date of the writs' return.

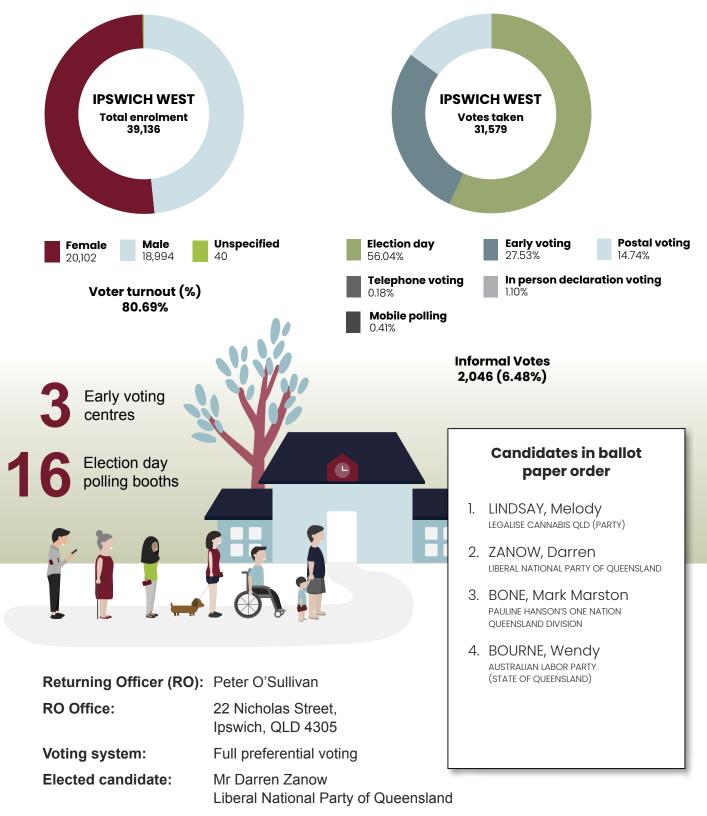

A copy of the writs and gazetted notices are available at Appendix A.

Voter Services

The by-elections were held concurrently with the 2024 local government quadrennial elections, and the ECQ provided a variety of voting services to encourage and enable eligible electors in the Inala and Ipswich West electoral districts to cast a formal ballot for the by-elections.

The by-elections were both attendance events, with electors able to cast their vote in-person at polling places throughout their electorate during the early voting period and on election day. Alternative voting services, such as postal voting and telephone voting, were also available for electors who applied or registered.

Inala and Ipswich West electors were also required to vote for their local government representatives and the ECQ streamlined its service delivery arrangements to allow electors to be marked off the electoral roll for both events at the same time.

However, conducting State and local government elections simultaneously does create some challenges. Most notably, electors from these districts were required to use multiple voting systems to cast their votes in different electoral contests.

Inala electors:

- Inala State by-election: full preferential voting
- Mayor and councillor: optional preferential voting

Ipswich electors:

- Ipswich West State by-election: full preferential voting
- Mayor: optional preferential voting
- Councillors: first-past-the-post voting

Enrolment

At the close of the electoral roll on Monday, 5 February 2024, the Inala electoral district had 38,870 enrolled electors, and the Ipswich West electoral district had 39,136 enrolled electors.

New enrolments and updates to enrolment details were accepted until 6.00pm Friday, 15 March 2024. Voters who updated their details during this period may have had to complete a declaration vote to enable staff to verify their enrolment or updated information.

Nominations

Candidate nominations opened on Wednesday, 31 January 2024 and closed at 12.00pm Tuesday, 13 February 2024. Eight candidates nominated to contest the Inala State by-election and four candidates, all endorsed by registered political parties, nominated to contest the Ipswich West State by-election.

Once nominations closed, ballot paper order draws were conducted at 2.00pm on Tuesday, 13 February 2024. In the presence of witnesses, the respective Returning Officer of each electoral district, drew the names of each of the nominated candidates to determine the order in which the candidates' names were to appear on the corresponding ballot paper.

A register of candidates for both State byelections was prepared in accordance with the Electoral Act 1992 and published on the ECQ website. The registers are included at Appendix B. A total of 65,941 ballot papers (60,000 ordinary and 5,941 postal) were printed for the Inala State by-election and 65,850 ballot papers (60,000 ordinary and 5,850 postal) were printed for the Ipswich West State by-election. The ballot papers were distributed across early voting centres and election day polling booths, including Brisbane City Hall, to ensure adequate supply of ballot papers at each polling place.

Election day voting

Historically, election day voting has accounted for the majority of votes cast at Queensland elections. However, the rate of early voting has been increasing over time, and at state wide elections held in 2020, early voting became the most utilised voting channel.

However, the March 2024 elections saw a reversion to election day voting as the most popular voting option for electors. Approximately 44.87 per cent of voters in the Inala State by-election and 56.04 per cent of voters in the Ipswich West State by-election, cast their ballot on election day.

From 8.00am to 6.00pm on election day, Saturday, 16 March 2024, nine polling booths operated in the Inala electorate and 16 polling booths operated in the Ipswich West electorate. In addition, voting was available at Brisbane City Hall.

Early voting

Early voting centres operated for a two-week period between Monday, 4 March and Friday, 15 March 2024 at three venues for the Inala electorate and three venues for the Ipswich West electorate, including Brisbane City Hall.

Early voting was available from 9.00am to 5.00pm every weekday of the two-week period, except Friday, 15 March 2024, when early voting centres operated from 9.00am to 6.00pm.

Approximately 38.31 per cent of votes in the Inala State by-election and 27.53 per cent of votes in the Ipswich West State by-election, were cast at an early voting centre during this period.

Early voting centre details are listed below.

A polling booth and early voting notice was published on the ECQ website to notify and declare the availability of election day and early voting polling place information. The notice is included at Appendix B.

Postal voting

Voters were able to apply for a postal vote from Tuesday, 30 January until 7.00pm on Monday, 4 March 2024. Printing and despatch of postal vote materials commenced following the ballot paper order draw on Tuesday, 13 February 2024.

There were 5,267 postal votes issued during the Inala by-election, with 4,633 ballot papers included in the count. This represented 15.41 per cent of votes cast for the Inala by-election. There were 4,805 postal votes issued during the Ipswich-West by-election, with 4,654 ballot papers included in the count. This represented 14.74 per cent of votes cast for the Ipswich West by-election.

Telephone voting

Electronically assisted voting, commonly known as telephone voting, is a limited service primarily designed for voters who have impairment, live a long distance from polling places or have a low level of literacy, enabling them to cast their vote anonymously via telephone.

For the Inala and Ipswich West State byelections, certain electors were eligible to cast a telephone vote in accordance with section 121A of the Electoral Act 1992 and section 4AA of the Electoral Regulation 2013. Those eligible for telephone voting at the by-elections were electors who:

- could not vote without assistance due to an impairment
- could not vote without assistance due to an insufficient literacy level
- could not physically vote at a polling place due to an impairment
- were a registered special postal voter
- were enrolled at an address more than 20 kilometres from a polling booth
- could not vote at a polling booth during the voting period for the by-election, and
- were out of state or classified as an overseas voter, including defence force personnel serving overseas.

The telephone voting process for eligible electors entails two phone calls to separate call centres to maintain the secrecy of the ballot.

In the first call, electors apply to use the service and once deemed eligible, receive a registration number and PIN.

In the second phone call, electors use the registration number and PIN to have their name marked off the electoral roll. During this call, an ECQ officer completes the ballot paper as dictated by the elector, with a second ECQ officer listening and observing to ensure the vote is recorded as per the elector's direction.

Although a resource and time-intensive method of taking votes, telephone voting is designed to enfranchise the community's more vulnerable members or cater for those with a specific need such as distance voters with limited polling place access or electors with an impairment.

To ensure telephone voting is administered in accordance with legislative requirements, the ECQ must make procedures for electronically assisted voting, which are approved under a regulation and tabled in the Legislative Assembly. The procedures for telephone voting that applied to these by-elections were approved by the Electoral Commissioner on 14 December 2023 and have been published on the ECQ website.

In addition, the ECQ engaged an independent auditor to perform a compliance review of the systems used for telephone voting and provide assurance that the process complies in all material respects with the Electoral Act 1992.

At the Inala and Ipswich West State byelections, eligible electors were able to register to use the telephone voting service from Tuesday, 30 January until 12.00pm on election day, Saturday, 16 March 2024. Electors could then cast their telephone vote during the voting period from Monday, 4 March up until 6.00pm on election day.

At the Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections, 43 and 56 telephone votes were taken respectively. This is a significant decrease when compared with the 2020 State general election, where 115 and 159 telephone votes were cast by Inala and Ipswich West electors respectively.

Election staff

As the by-elections were delivered concurrently with the local government elections, temporary election staff were employed to support by-election delivery for both election events. These staff were led by Returning Officers who were engaged to manage most aspects of election service delivery, including administering and resourcing venues, processing candidate nominations, conducting the ballot paper order draw and overseeing the conduct of the vote count. The Returning Officers for the Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections were employed for the 2024 local government elections following a merit-based recruitment exercise undertaken in 2023. The Returning Officer positions for the Forest Lake Ward of Brisbane City Council and the Ipswich City Council were subsequently extended to include responsibility for State byelection delivery.

Additional temporary election staff were also employed to undertake various roles to deliver the by-elections. Applications for additional temporary election roles, supplementing the existing temporary election staff profile for the local government elections, opened on 5 February 2024. The ECQ received 1,104 additional applications to work at the Inala State by-election and 929 applications for the Ipswich West State by-election.

As part of recruitment for the local government elections, the ECQ had proactively contacted people who had previously worked for the ECQ at the 2020 State general election to advise them that applications for the March 2024 elections had opened.

Polling places for local government areas overlapping with State electoral districts were resourced to service electors voting in both the State by-elections and the local government elections.

Polling places were allocated additional early voting staffing hours and election day staffing positions to manage the additional workload associated with the by-elections. Staffing resources for the Inala State by-election were shared with the Forest Lake Ward of the Brisbane City Council election and resources for the Ipswich West State by-election were shared with the Ipswich City Council elections.

All staff who were employed to work at the by-elections and local government elections completed an online training program. Staff in more senior roles also attended face-to-face training. The Returning Officers both attended four days of face-to-face training at ECQ head office, and supervisors and election day senior issuing officers attended three hours of face-toface training delivered by the Returning Officer at their office.

Accessibility services

The ECQ provided a variety of services to ensure accessibility at the State by-elections. This included:

- publishing disability access information for polling places on the ECQ website
- making translation and interpreter services available for people who speak English as a second language
- providing a Multilingual Guide to Voting which included voting information in 25 languages other than English
- producing directional posters in English and Vietnamese with the message "You can vote in the Inala State by-election here" for display at polling places in the Inala electorate to promote by-election voting to the large Vietnamese population.

Additionally, at Queensland elections, electors are entitled to request a person join them in the polling booth to assist them to cast their ballot. This person can act as an interpreter, read or explain the ballot paper instructions, or complete the ballot paper according to the elector's instructions and place the ballot paper in the ballot box.

Declared institution voting is a form of mobile polling where polling officials visit patients and residents of registered declared institutions, such as aged care facilities, to allow them to cast a ballot. Contact was made with the registered declared institutions within the Inala and Ipswich West electoral districts to offer a mobile polling service to residents, especially those in high care, who could not otherwise attend a polling booth.

Mobile polling was carried out at one institution for the Inala by-election and three institutions for the Ipswich West by-election. The details of these institutions were published on the ECQ website and are included at Appendix B.

Communication and awareness

Communication and awareness activities to support the Inala and Ipswich West by-elections were delivered via a multi-channel strategy. This program of work was designed to ensure electors were aware of the elections and had the information required to participate by casting a formal vote. Activities included:

- delivery of a targeted social media information campaign
- placement of advertisements in local print media and on digital news websites
- distribution of stakeholder kits to 15 local community organisations, and
- delivery of a proactive media strategy targeting print and radio outlets.

The ECQ's social media information campaign comprised of eight Facebook posts published at key stages of the election period which reached 46,443 electors, achieved 46,258 impressions and resulted in 2,649 engagements.

Election information was advertised in local print and online publications including the Courier-Mail and Ipswich Tribune (print) and NewsCorp, Ipswich Tribune and Australian Community Media (online). This advertisement provided election dates and times, polling booth opening hours, postal voting information and receipt deadline and reminders that voting is compulsory. Examples of social media posts and advertisements are at Appendix C.

ECQ representatives, including the Electoral Commissioner, gave a number of media interviews throughout the election period, providing information about both the local government elections and the two State by-elections.

Three media releases specifically relating to the Ipswich and Inala West State by-elections were disseminated to journalists across Queensland during the election period, with two releases issued following the declaration of these results.

Website

The ECQ website provided a range of information to support participation in the byelections for electors and political participants, including the election timetable, candidate obligations, early voting locations, names of candidates, voting options, election day polling booths and election results.

The Inala and Ipswich West by-elections web page on the ECQ website received 47,279 views over the duration of the election campaign.

The ECQ published pre-election metrics for this by-election, including the number of postal vote applications received, postal votes returned and early voting totals. The figures were updated daily during the election period.

Voting centres and office premises

As the Inala and Ipswich West State byelections were held at the same time as the 2024 local government elections, venues for Returning Officer offices, early voting centres and election day polling booths were shared with those that had been selected and leased for the local government areas within these electorates. This ensured electors only had to attend one venue to cast their vote in both elections.

The ECQ selects the most suitable premises available at the time of an election. Venue considerations are extensive and include size, location, accessibility, amenities, street frontage, access for deliveries, internet connectivity, workplace health and safety and availability. The ability to secure premises that meet functional requirements can present challenges, particularly in negotiating agreements to enter short-term leases when the supply of premises is limited.

Service centre

The ECQ service centre operated throughout the by-elections, offering support to electors to access services or information, respond to enquiries or to take feedback and complaints. The majority of callers phoning the ECQ's 1300 881 665 number, or emailing ecq@ecq.qld.gov.au, received assistance through the ECQ service centre.

Service centre staff assisted with a range of enquiries including:

- registering electors for telephone voting
- processing postal vote applications
- providing information about the different voting services available, and
- responding to general enquiries and complaints.

During the election period, the service centre was open from 8.00am to 5.00pm on Monday to Friday and operated from 8.00am to 6.00pm on election day. The service centre remained open until 7.00pm on Monday, 4 March 2024, for the close of postal voting applications.

Waste management

In providing electoral services, wherever possible the ECQ seeks to use paper and cardboard items comprising recycled content and to ensure that the paper and cardboard items are themselves recycled.

For the Inala and Ipswich West State byelections, standard cardboard items were used in voting centres included voting screens, accessible voting screens, ballot boxes, caution signs and recycle bins. Cardboard is often re-used by schools and community groups before being recycled through their programs.

Feedback and complaints

Members of the public were able to provide feedback or lodge a customer complaint about ECQ services, actions or decisions via the ECQ's feedback and complaints process.

The ECQ received 14 customer complaints in relation to the 2024 Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections. The categories of the submissions received were:

- postal voting (1)
- online postal vote application process (1)
- in-person voting experience (11), and
- ECQ staff including Returning Officers, polling place staff and call centre staff (1).

The ECQ responds to general complaints within 15 business days, and where practicable and appropriate, considers any improvements from the feedback received that can be implemented for future elections.

Nous Group was commissioned by the ECQ in November 2023 to evaluate the local government elections and provide recommendations on areas for operational improvements. The scope of this review was expanded in March 2024, with additional consideration of issues experienced on election day.

The report, Review of Election Day Issues at the 2024 Queensland Local Government Elections, addresses issues such as wait times at polling places that were experienced by some electors on election day at the 2024 local government elections, noting these issues also impacted some electors participating in the State by-elections.

The ECQ has accepted the report's recommendations and has developed a schedule to implement recommended improvements for the 2024 State general election and future elections. The report and the ECQ's response are available on the ECQ website.

Election results

Following the close of polling at 6.00pm on election day, Saturday, 16 March 2024, the preliminary count was undertaken. This count provided electors, candidates, parties and other election participants an early indication of the final results.

The official first preference count commenced on Sunday, 17 March 2024.

Following completion of the count of all available ballots, Mr Darren Zanow of the Liberal National Party of Queensland was declared the elected candidate for the electoral district of Ipswich West.

Following the deadline for the return of postal votes, Ms Margie Nightingale of the Australian Labor Party (State of Queensland) was declared the elected candidate for the electoral district of Inala.

The Electoral Commissioner returned the completed writs for the Ipswich West and Inala State by-elections to the Governor of Queensland on Friday, 22 March 2024 and Wednesday, 27 March 2024 respectively. Notices advising of the return of the writs and the names of the elected candidates were published in the Queensland Government Gazette on the date of writ's return. Both members were sworn into the Queensland Parliament on Tuesday, 16 April 2024.

The ECQ completed an official distribution of preferences count following the deadline for the return of postal votes, to finalise the results. Ms Nightingale received 37.23 per cent of first preference votes and, after the distribution of preferences, received 56.65 per cent of the total vote. Mr Zanow received 39.53 per cent of first preference votes and, after the distribution of preferences, received 53.50 per cent of the total vote.

The first preference count and distribution for preferences for the Inala and Ipswich West State by-election is in Appendix D.

Compliance services

The ECQ carried out compliance and enforcement actions for both by-elections, including ensuring electoral participants were adhering to funding and disclosure obligations.

The ECQ also undertakes enforcement action against those enrolled electors who have failed to vote. These actions promote transparency in the electoral system and incentivise greater electoral participation.

Electoral participant compliance

The ECQ works closely with candidates, registered political parties, and other election participants, as well as their staff and volunteers, to promote awareness and support compliance with legislative obligations. The ECQ produces a range of resources for these electoral participants including handbooks, fact sheets and guides to explain endorsement, nomination and disclosure requirements.

Two compliance issues attracted significant media attention during the elections.

The first related to a candidate who posted to social media an image of themselves appearing to vote in an electorate for which they were not eligible to vote. Following an investigation by the ECQ, it was determined that the candidate did not cast a vote, but posed for a photo while assisting another elector (who was correctly enrolled in the electorate) to place their ballot in the ballot box. Based on these facts, which were witnessed by the ECQ's election officials in the polling booth, no offence was identified, and no further action was taken.

The second matter related to a how-to-vote card which was distributed by a third party at polling places in Ipswich West. Due to the content of the how-to-vote card, questions were raised about the legality of the card's distribution by the third party.

Candidates and registered political parties must have their how-to-vote cards approved by the ECQ before they can be distributed. Conversely, third parties may distribute how-to-vote cards without approval from the ECQ, so long as they do not mislead an elector about the ways of voting in an election, such as by directing voters to cast an informal ballot, or to vote in a way which is not permitted.

Consideration may need to be given to reviewing the operation of the how-to-vote card provisions of the Electoral Act 1992 in the context of modern elections. The provisions pertaining to the lodgement and approval of how-to-vote cards have not been significantly revised since 2002 and do not appear to consider issues such as the increase in early voting or campaign activities of third parties. Comparatively, the Local Government Electoral Act 2011 was significantly revised in 2019 to address the early voting issue.

Election summary returns

All political parties, candidates, associated entities and registered third parties submitted an election summary return by the due date of 1 July 2024. Upon receipt of returns, the ECQ conducts examinations of the returns to assess compliance with the political donation cap, electoral expenditure cap and other funding and disclosure obligations.

Election funding claims

Applications for election funding were due to be submitted by 5 August 2024. All five registered political parties which contested the State by-elections have submitted a claim, as well as the two independent candidates who became eligible to make a claim. Claims are being examined as at September 2024.

For these by-elections, political parties were entitled to claim a maximum of $6.445 per formal first preference vote received, while candidates were entitled to claim a maximum of $3.223 per formal first preference vote.

Voter compliance

Voting is compulsory in Queensland, and it is an offence for an elector to fail to cast a vote without a valid and sufficient reason. Following the March elections, the ECQ commenced a non-voter compliance program to identify and communicate with individuals who appeared to have failed to vote, with the aim of reinforcing the importance of voting and encouraging participation at future elections.

Relevant compliance action is being undertaken as part of the non-voter program for the 2024 local government elections. Notices were sent to individuals who appear to have failed to vote at the March elections in July 2024.

The apparent failure to vote notice provides several opportunities for recipients to contact the ECQ and provide an explanation for not voting, or to advise the ECQ if they did vote, prompting the ECQ to investigate further.

Depending on the information provided, the ECQ can opt to take no further action if the elector provides a valid and sufficient excuse for not voting or evidence that they did in fact cast a vote. However, if the elector fails to respond to the ECQ's correspondence, or provides an excuse that is not deemed sufficient, further action, such as issuing a penalty infringement notice, may be taken.

Review of informal ballot papers

At Queensland State elections and by-elections, electors must choose their representatives using the full preferential voting system. To cast a formal vote in these elections, electors must number every box on the ballot paper in their order of preference. In accordance with section 123 of the Electoral Act 1992, if 'a ballot paper does not have effect to indicate a vote, it is an informal ballot paper' and will not contribute towards the election result. At most elections, a portion of the ballots cast will be informal.

Informal voting offers important insights into the elector's engagement with, and understanding of, electoral processes. Noting the Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections were held concurrently with the 2024 local government elections, electors participating in the by-elections were required to use multiple voting systems.

In Inala, optional preferential voting was used to elect the mayor and councillor for the relevant local government area, while full preferential voting was required for the State by-election. Ipswich West electors were required to use three different voting systems, optional preferential voting to elect their mayor, first-pastthe-post to elect their divisional councillors and full preferential voting for the State by-election. The ECQ conducted an analysis of approximately 4,500 informal ballot papers for the Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections to identify whether electors intentionally or unintentionally cast an informal ballot. This was achieved through a process of reviewing and distributing each informal ballot paper into 15 categories, eight of which assume the ballot was intentionally informal and seven which assume the ballot was unintentionally informal.

It is important to note that it is not always possible to definitively ascertain electors' intentions in casting an informal ballot, and in those instances, the review makes educated assumptions based on the content of each ballot paper. While accepting these limitations, this review provides useful insight in informal voting patterns and informs future strategies aimed at increasing formal voting.

Methodology

The majority of informal ballot papers cast for each electorate at the State by-elections were organised into 15 categories that were classed as either 'assumed intentional' or 'assumed unintentional'.

The categories and their definitions are listed in the table on the following page.

Categories and definitions
Assumed intentional
Blank	Ballot papers that have been left blank.
Drawings	Ballot papers with drawings.
Writing – protest voting	Writing on ballot papers that protests voting (against compulsory voting, voting makes no difference, against the system etc).
Writing – protest candidate choices	Writing on ballot papers that protests the candidate choices at the election, dissatisfaction with choices or knowledge of choices.
Writing – other protest	Ballot papers with other written protests.
Intentional defective numbering / marks	Ballot papers with intentional defective numbering that cannot be counted / or defective markings (ticks or crosses).
Fragments	Ballot papers that have been ripped up and placed in the ballot box by the elector.
Other – intentional	Any other ballot papers deemed to be intentionally informal that do not fit within the other intentional categories.

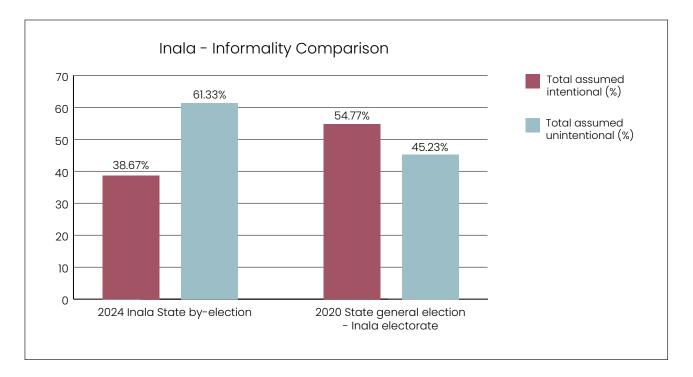

Assumed unintentional
Numbers 1 only – just voted one	Ballot papers where the elector allocated preferences for only one candidate, but not all as required for full preferential voting elections.
Numbers insufficient – but more than one	Ballot papers where the elector allocated preferences for more than one candidate, but not all as required for full preferential voting elections.
Numbers – unclear order of preferences	Ballot papers where it is not possible to determine a clear order of preferences, either due to factors such as repeated or skipped numbers or illegible handwriting.
Ticks and crosses – unintentional	Ballot papers with a cross or tick next to the candidates' names instead of numbering and clearly preferencing all candidates as required for full preferential voting elections.
Voter identifiable	Ballot papers that contain any writing or mark that identify the elector are informal in accordance with section 123(1)(b) of the Electoral Act 1992 .
Other – unintentional	Any other ballot papers deemed to be unintentionally informal that do not fit within the other unintentional categories.
Administrative error – formal	Ballot papers thought to be formal.

Inala informality review

Informal voting in the 2024 Inala State by-election increased to 8.74 per cent from 4.90 per cent at the 2020 State general election, an increase of 3.84 per cent.

The results of the informality review found that assumed intentional informal voting accounted for 38.67 per cent of informal ballot papers, while 61.33 per cent were assumed to be unintentionally informal.

This marks a change from the 2020 State general election, where intentional informal voting accounted for 54.77 per cent of informal ballot papers and unintentional informal voting accounted for 45.23 per cent.

The categorisation of informal ballot papers from the Inala State by-election revealed the following information:

- Close to 61 per cent of unintentional informal voting was the result of electors failing to preference the candidates on their ballot paper properly.
 - The 'Numbers 1 only just voted one' category accounted for the majority of informal ballots cast in Inala, with approximately 38 per cent of informal ballots falling into this category.
 - The 'Number insufficient but more than one' and 'Numbers – unclear order of preferences' categories accounted for approximately 12 and 11 per cent respectively.
- The 'Blank' category captured the most assumed intentional informal ballots, accounting for approximately 16 per cent of all informal votes cast in the Inala State byelection, representing an increase from the approximately 10 per cent observed at the 2020 State general election.

Intentional defective numbering / marks' also accounted for a large proportion of assumed intentional informal votes, representing approximately 12 per cent of informal ballots cast at the by-election.

Noting the increase in unintentional informal voting at the by-election when compared to the 2020 State general election, and particularly noting most of the informal ballots were found to be the result of incorrect or incomplete preferencing of candidates, this indicates that the different voting systems at the March elections was likely a contributing factor in increasing informality at the Inala State by-election.

Ipswich West informality review

Informal voting in the 2024 Ipswich West State by-election increased to 6.48 per cent from 4.01 per cent at the 2020 State general election, an increase of 2.47 per cent.

The results of the by-election informality review found that assumed intentional informal voting accounted for 58.70 per cent of informal ballot papers, while 41.30 per cent were assumed to be unintentionally informal. This marks a change from the 2020 State general election, where intentional informal voting accounted for 71.10 per cent of informal ballot papers and unintentional informal voting accounted for 28.90 per cent. This also contrasts with the outcomes of the Inala State by-election informality review, which found the majority of informal ballot papers (61.33 per cent) were assumed to be unintentionally informal.

The categorisation of informal ballot papers from the Ipswich West by-election revealed the following information:

- Approximately 40 per cent of unintentional informal voting was the result of electors failing to preference the candidates on their ballot paper properly.
 - The 'Numbers 1 only just voted one' category accounted for approximately 33 per cent of informal ballots in Ipswich West, which represented an increase from the approximately 10 per cent observed at the 2020 State general election.
 - The 'Number insufficient but more than one' and 'Numbers – Unclear Order of Preferences' categories accounted for approximately five and two per cent respectively.

- The 'Blank' category captured the most assumed intentional informal votes, accounting for approximately 29 per cent of all informal votes cast in the Ipswich West State by-election. This represented an increase from the approximately 22 per cent observed at the 2020 State general election.
- The 'Intentional defective numbering / marks' and 'Other – intentional' categories also contributed approximately nine and 10 per cent respectively towards assumed intentional informality.

While assumed intentional informal voting remained higher than unintentional informal voting in Ipswich West, the intentional categories representing protest votes or drawings accounted for very few of the informal ballots cast. As with the results in Inala, there was a notable increase in unintentional informal voting in Ipswich West when compared to the 2020 State general election informality review. Noting Ipswich West electors would have

Conclusions

Informal voting in the Inala and Ipswich West State by-elections increased substantially from the 2020 State general election, from 4.90 per cent to 8.74 per cent in Inala and 4.01 per cent to 6.48 per cent in Ipswich West.

The informal ballot paper review of the 2020 State general election¹ found that approximately 64 per cent of informal ballots cast across the 74 electorates reviewed were assumed to be intentional. Informal voting at the Ipswich West State by-election followed a similar trend, with close to 59 per cent of informal ballots found to be intentionally cast.

Interestingly, this differed in the Inala State by-election, where the majority of informal ballots were assumed to be unintentionally cast (61.33 per cent), with electors not preferencing all candidates on the ballot paper as required under the full preferential voting system for State elections.

It is noted that a significant proportion of Inala's population use a language other than English when compared against the national and state average.² This factor combined with the use of two different voting systems at the 2024 March elections, may have resulted in increased informal voting at the Inala State by-election. This inference is also supported by the fact that unintentional informality significantly increased at the Inala State by-election when compared against unintentional informality in the Inala electorate at the 2020 State general election (45.23 per cent).

needed to use three different voting systems at the March 2024 State by-election and local government elections, this indicates that different voting systems were a likely a contributing factor in increasing informality.

While this may be attributable to many different factors, the by-elections being held alongside the local government quadrennial elections, where different voting systems applied, appears to have been a contributing factor to the increased levels of informality.

The ECQ utilises the outcomes of informality reviews to identify opportunities and strategies to address unintentional informality by targeting and improving electors' understanding of formal voting. The ECQ will review informal ballots in the Inala and Ipswich West electorates following the 2024 State general election, to monitor informal voting trends in these electorates.
